ABOUT CCC

Cowiche Canyon Conservancy (CCC) is working to connect people to nature. We are a non-profit land trust in Yakima, Washington protecting our shrub-steppe habitat – a unique landscape made up of sagebrush and grasslands, flowering meadows, oak woodlands, and basalt cliffs. CCC owns and manages over 5,000 acres of land and provides more than 30 miles of trails for outdoor recreation. We conserve these natural areas and connect people to them through recreation and education.

- There is no drinking water. It is VERY important to bring adequate water for your planned activity.
- There are no tables, chairs, or covered shelters on site.
- Visitors need to dress appropriately for the weather and wear shoes suitable for walking on uneven ground.
- School groups are responsible for providing an adequate number of chaperones in compliance with their school district policy, as well as insurance coverage during the time of their visit to the site.
- Children should be supervised at all times since the areas include steep rocky trails, cliffs, creeks, unfenced bridges, and irrigation ditches.
- You are visiting the natural habitat of a variety of plants, insects, animals, birds, reptiles, and amphibians, some of which bite and sting. Rattlesnake and poison oak can be encountered.
- NO SPECIMEN COLLECTING PLEASE.
